Background

The Hospital General de México "Dr. Eduardo Liceaga", school-hospital par excellence, committed to constantly improve the quality of care of their patients, has implemented the use of Virtual Campus as a strategy to train their medical, paramedical and related, in patients care.

Summary of work

The virtual campus was conducted in moodle platform.

The online course consisted of seven modules in video lessons, which were recorded in hospital channel; subjects were taught by experts with clear and understandable language. This campus was available from May to October 2015.

Each module included a final evaluation, composed of five multiple-choice questions and two opportunities to answer them, requiring a minimum score of 6/10.

Subsequently they underwent a survey to determine the impact of the virtual campus.

Summary of results

We evaluated 129 workers. The topics covered were: obstetric emergencies, Conciliation and Suitability; immunocompromised, treatment and isolation of infecto-contagious, dialysis, neonatal care and comatose patient.

There was 97.52% approval on the first try, getting an average score of 91/100.

In the opinion poll (n=100) of virtual campus, 81.4% agree that access to the virtual campus was easy; 76%, that the content is displayed in a clear way, and finally 93.79% think it worked in everyday life.

Discussion

The use of TICs in the training of personnel is an accessible, user-friendly tool, which produces satisfactory approval ratings in evaluations.

Conclusions

The low cost of the virtual campus allows the entire hospital staff to have access to it. It is also an easy-to-use tool, and helped improving health conditions and patient care with greater user participation.

Take-home messages.

The virtual campus is a good training system for a large population, so we can continue using it in different hospital fields.
